The Wellington Community Trust is part of the network of community trusts throughout New Zealand that represent a community taonga that is unique to New Zealand. The assets of these community trust come from the sale of TrustBank in 1988. Despite some confusing names among different sorts of trusts, the Wellington Community Trust and its sister community trusts are not gaming trusts. Over 30 years the Wellington Community Trust fund has grown from $30m to $70m, and in that time the trust has granted $40m to charities and community causes in the Wellington region.

Growing the fund relies on investment returns from New Zealand and overseas. We rely on professional advice to maintain a diversified investment portfolio to provide reasonable income and growth while protecting the capital fund. The markets can be volatile, but the fact that Wellington Community Trust is a 30 year old fund in perpetuity means we are in a good position to take a long-term view and to ride out short term fluctuations.

At a time of transition with five new trustees, we are very aware that it is a privilege to be trustees of both the fund and the increasing heritage of investment in the community. We are very conscious that we are standing on the shoulders of those who have served as trustees before us.

The Wellington Community Trust is small compared to similar trusts around the country; on a population basis our fund is the smallest of the community trusts. This means our grants are necessarily smaller and fewer relative to the populations in other regions, and we have to be careful and selective in the grants we make. There are significant needs and great opportunities to help people engage and be connected in their communities and for the Wellington region to be more sustainable environmentally and socially.

It is humbling and exciting to see the funding applications that are made to the trust, and we always wish that we could do more. We are implementing some changes to our granting framework, including increasing the limit for Quick Response Grants to $10,000 and evolving the emphasis of our granting criteria, in an effort to be more responsive to our community applicants and the people they serve.

Our Quick Response Grants, Community Grants and on-going multi-year grants for 2018-19 are listed in this report, and we congratulate each grant recipient for the great work they do.

Jointly sponsoring the Wellington Community Awards ceremony with Wellington International Airport has become an annual highlight for Wellington Community Trust. The category winners were all grass-roots organisations that are doing great work in their communities. The supreme winner was USO Bike Ride, promoting the health and social benefits of bike riding among people who would never otherwise join a bike club. Other category winners include the Tape Art Festival in Porirua; The Shed Project, Kāpiti; Every Body is a Treasure Charitable Trust, promoting healthy body image for women and girls; Ghost Fishing New Zealand, improving the environment around the Wellington coast; and WELLFed, teaching cooking and food knowledge in economically vulnerable communities.

These awards are a great opportunity to encourage and celebrate ordinary people with extraordinary vision and passion.

We have also been in the fortunate position of being able to make a smaller number of larger grants for special projects identified in 2017-18. These have included special grants to the Capital Kiwi Predator Free project, Wellington Free Ambulance, Wellington Zoo, the Baring Head Lighthouse and combined iwi from the Wellington region.

It was also a special honour to be able to provide significant support for the Te Matatini Kapa Haka festival that was held in Wellington.

We are looking forward to continuing to refine how the Wellington Community Trust works to maximise the impact we can have to help make the Wellington region the best it can possibly be for the people who live here now and into the future.

Roger Palairet
WCT Chairperson

He mihi nui tenei ki a koutou!

I'm delighted to report on the achievements of the Wellington Community Trust for the 2018/19 financial year.

WCT has had a great year, granting across our People, Places and Participation granting categories, as well as making some significant one-off grants under our special fund, as Roger has reported on in his Chair's report.

In June 2018 the Trust had five new Trustees appointed, and we busied ourselves bringing this group of talented and experienced individuals up to speed with our organisation. We farewelled a number of long serving Trustees, who had put in significant hours into the Trust over many years. They were: Jan Dowland, Gerardine Clifford-Lidstone, Barry Lindsay, Dawn Sanders, Clare Needham and Norry Simmons. We thank each of you for your time and dedication to the Trust.

Towards the end of the year the Board decided to update our grants framework and refresh our Vision as an organisation. A summary of the new framework can be found on pages 10 and 11. You will see a greater emphasis on social equity and communities of disadvantage in our new framework. While I think WCT has had this focus for sometime, the new framework makes explicit what was probably implicit in the past.

Over the last year, taking into account the feedback we heard loud and clear from stakeholders, WCT worked on developing a new grants stream. The LIFT Grants officially launched in May 2019. LIFT aims to build the capability of the not for profit sector in the Wellington region. An initial commitment of $300,000 in the first year signals the Board intention to invest, over the next few years, in the people who do the vital (and often under-recognised) work in our communities in the region. I look forward to reporting in a years' time on the number of LIFT Grants we've awarded in the 2019/20 financial year.

In August last year we hosted, in partnership with Philanthropy NZ, Fred Blackwell, CEO of the San Francisco Foundation. Fred inspired everyone he spoke to about the power of redirecting his Trust's resources to addressing racial and economic inequity in the Bay region of California.

Fred's visit was very timely for WCT's new Trustees and inspired some of the thinking behind our refreshed granting framework.

In November last year we said goodbye to Kate Hiatt, our dedicated Community Engagement and Funding Manager. Kate was with the Trust for five years, she was well-loved and respected across the Wellington region. The knowledge of our sector and the work done within it that Kate held was second to none. She is missed both within our office and the sector. Kate's departure opened the door for our new staff member, Chiara LaRotonda to join us. Chiara comes to the Trust with a wealth of experience in the community sector, primarily in the health and social work fields. Chiara has hit the ground running and brings great insight and experience to her work.

WCT continues to go from strength to strength. It's been a delight and privilege to lead this small but mighty organisation over the last 12 months.

Thank you
Georgie Ferrari

In the last financial year we farewelled several long-serving Trustees.

We thank the following Trustees for their dedication and hard work over many years:

Jan Dowland

who served the Trust since 2009, (and Chair from 2013 – 2016)

Mele Wendt

Dr Pushpa Wood.

The year in review

The 2018/19 year was a most interesting one for the portfolio of the Wellington Community Trust. For many years the financial markets rose and rose, helped by a friendly investment climate of low interest rates, good company earnings and a generally stable international outlook for trade. The markets began this year where they left off, with equity and bond markets stable and rising, US economic growth continuing, and company earnings presenting investors with a healthy picture. So far, so good, but behind the scenes, a picture was building of uncertainty, that markets had gone too far, that interest rates would rise, and President Trump's policies could harm international trade.

What became clear in October was that as the Federal Reserve continued with their planned rises in interest rates and the US economy went from strength to strength, the market's relaxed view of the trade wars and accompanying President Trump rhetoric was far too optimistic. Real concerns emerged that a quick trade deal to suit all parties was not around the corner. Adding to the mix was a view that the US economic growth was largely fuelled by the previous year's tax cuts, and therefore was more of a short-term blip than a long-term period of real growth. Long bond yields were beginning to fall, a clear signal of tough times ahead, yet the equities markets continued to rise. Quite simply, the market realised that it had got it wrong and the resultant sell-off in November and December was short and sharp as markets lost all the gains of 2018 in the space of a month.

The story for the March quarter was built on the Federal Reserve reversing its policy for rate rises. Confidence returned that trade wars would be avoided, and the equity markets quickly regained all the ground they had lost. World markets finished the March quarter at near record levels. Short term sentiment shifts almost daily depending on what is tweeted, and increased volatility is now an accepted part of the investment landscape. Despite all this, the portfolio made a small gain of $1,138,654 for the year.

The portfolio is set up to deliver a long-term average return of 4% per annum after inflation and fees. This does not mean 4% every year, it means that in some years it will fall, but over a long period of a time we be able to meet our commitments to distribute money to the people of the Wellington region and add to the value of the portfolio. We do not try to anticipate changes in returns from asset classes, and we retain an emphasis to growth assets, and there is no change to our investment approach. This approach has served us well over the years with substantial reserves built up that enable us to handle a market decline and still increase our level of granting. Previous board members and our Investment Consultant Mercer Consulting can take great credit for the strong position that the portfolio is now in. Our expectation is that the value of the portfolio will fall this year but as noted we still expect to meet the needs of our community.

We will be taking a more hands on approach to the companies that our portfolio invests in by considering their environmental, social and governance goals – more simply known as ESG. There seems little point in making money from companies that damage the environment, or whose activities harm the community in other ways, when our granting seeks to address the very harm that these activities cause. We will seek clarity on the activities of the companies we invest in and ensure that they are aligned with our own ESG goals. Where they do not align, we will actively work with our investment advisor to ensure that our goals are understood by all our fund managers, and limit the Trust's exposure to stocks which do not meet them. Our operational costs are low and controlled but we will continue to monitor these whilst ensuring we have enough resource to understand and deliver the outcomes that our community wants.

Over the last 12 months the WCT Board approved several one-off significant donations. The Board were able to make these grants due to high returns in our investment portfolio over a number of years. These grants, totalling just over $1.95m went to iconic, well-loved initiatives or organisations that have had or will have a lasting impact for the people of the Wellington region. They were:

- Wellington Zoo – $303,500 for Zoo hospital equipment
- Wellington Free Ambulance – $500,000 for general operating costs
- National Music Centre, VUW – $500,000 for Wellington Town Hall refurbishment
- Capital Kiwi/Predator Free – $500,000 for predator trapping on Wellington’s South West Coast to enable kiwi population to be reintroduced and flourish in this area
- Friends of Baring Head Lighthouse – $150,000 for restoration of the Baring Head Lighthouse compound.
